

Mr. Charles C. Clats estimates the population of Cincinnati at nearly 250,000. He says:

A general impression exists that the city has lost ground for some years past, especially since the recent commercial and financial disasters. The statement of the population of Cincinnati in 1850, however, shows that up to that date the school tables as testimony on this point, for subsequent periods, and assume, as I judge we correctly may, that they correspond, year by year, with the general estimate, it seems, then, that from 1850 to 1855 we increased at the rate of 8 per cent., and from 1855 to 1857 at the rate of 10 per cent., and from 1857 to 1859 at the rate of 12 per cent., annually. If, in consequence of business depression, we have fallen back to the increase of 1856, let it be remembered that, with the exception of 1857 only, the increase of 1856 and 1858 are the largest of any year since 1850. There can be little doubt, I think, that the city, right up to the present, is only temporary, and that a future of prosperity is opening upon Cincinnati, not less bright than any period of her past existence.

From 1830 to 1840 we nearly doubled our population. Our increase from 1840 to 1850 was 150 per cent., assuming that the census of 1850 was correctly taken. The census of 1850 will more than double our population of 1850, and our population even now is more than four-fold that of 1840.

THE SLAVE TRADE.

Resolutions were introduced into the State senate of South Carolina on the 26th inst., declaring that the constitution of the United States contains no grant or authority to interfere with the commerce of foreign nations; therefore, that all acts of Congress purporting to prohibit the slave trade between foreign countries are unconstitutional, null, and void; also, that the act of Congress declaring the slave trade piracy, inasmuch as it converts into piracy what is not so in the nature of things, or, in the case of the constitution, is unconstitutional, null, and void.

Senator Messick made a strong speech in favor of the resolutions, declaring Congress might as well make the trade in coffee piracy as the trade in slaves, and discharging the right of the United States to interfere with the slave trade between foreign nations.

The resolutions were referred to a committee on federal relations by a vote of 25 to 13, which is considered fatal to them.

THE PHILADELPHIA NAVY-YARD.

[From the Philadelphia Ledger, Nov. 29.]

The navy yard has recently been a very prolific source of newspaper jeremiads upon political favoritism and the corruption of patronage. Before the election it was stated that the place was packed with individuals who were expected to reward such official favor with their votes, and since the election it has been stated that over 200 men and the number of the workmen employed have been discharged. The number of workmen employed at our navy-yard is less than is employed at Brooklyn, and not more than is required by the large amount of public work which is in progress there. The highest number has been between fifteen hundred and two thousand, and the number of steady periods has been as follows: September 15, 1859; October 1, 1859; November 1, 1859; December 1, 1859; January 1, 1860; February 1, 1860; March 1, 1860; April 1, 1860; May 1, 1860; June 1, 1860; July 1, 1860; August 1, 1860; September 1, 1860; October 1, 1860; November 1, 1860; December 1, 1860; January 1, 1861; February 1, 1861;
